Voith Hydro appoints Kaniki Tshibwabwa as sales engineer: service

Voith Hydro has appointed Kaniki Tshibwabwa as sales engineer: service with effect from 1 November 2015. Fluent in French and Portuguese, Tshibwabwa will be travelling extensively throughout Africa to develop the fledgling Voith Hydro service business. Tshibwabwa has a BTech in Mechanical Engineering and is in the process of completing his MEng Mechanical Engineering degree. He lectured at Unisa from 2010, prior to which he worked for La Geleevie as a consultant for six years. Earlier experience includes working for the State-owned electricity company SNEL in the Democratic Republic of the Congo as a senior mechanical engineer.

Further information is available on the Voith website at www.voith.com.
Voith is also on Twitter and YouTube.

Voith sets standards in the markets of energy, oil and gas, paper, raw materials and transportation and automotive. Founded in 1867, Voith employs over 39 000 people, generates €5.3 billion in sales and operates in more than 50 countries, making it one of the largest family-owned companies in Europe.
